

Transformation

Peter and the Boys started with dusty, dusty, dirt.
They dug the trenches for the irrigation system which extends to my flower garden/hill
And takes in Halcyon Park.
It is all on timers.
Now all the place looks like a park.

Laying the first strip along a string line to make sure it is straight.

Straight to the back, around the tree
to the garden fence.

You have to have help . . .

It's a start (could it be real?)

Kibitzer and workers, right?

Look at that! Nearly half finished

It takes a lot of man-power to drag that stuff around!

Almost there . . .

Always have to clean your fingernails
after a dirty job.

Ah, yes, well where is the crochet set? In the shed maybe.

We might even be able to play frisbee here.

Lawns have to be mowed and this one has grown that tall in less than a week.

For an instant lawn you need an instatnt lawn mower and Pete jumped right up.

Look at that boy go . . .

Halcyon Park is still here

The ponds with their summer waterlilies . . .

The elfin thyme around the ponds with its tiny purple flowers

- So there you have a story of grass in the desert.
 - Work brought to you by Peter Muller and the boys of Superior Solutions Landscaping
 - Pictures brought to you by yours truly, Hazel Muller always close at hand with the camera.

We Love
Our Grass
the dogs
roll on it
we walk barefoot on it
Peter mows it.
Yes, we love our grass
